Customer Reviews

At 270 pages with many hundreds of photographs, this book traces the history of what is now called the Los Angeles County College of Nursing and Allied Health from its founding in 1895 through its centenary year. Alumna Virginia Mieding assembled information and images from a great variety of sources, including oral histories and reminiscences, to compile this massive look back at the school and the city and hospital that grew along with it. Through name changes from Training School for Nurses, Los Angeles County General Hospital School of Nursing, Los Angeles County Medical Center School of Nursing, from working six 12-hour days and attending lectures in the evenings, weathering waves of paratyphoid or polio, and moving from the old complex of hospital buildings to the shining tall building on the hilltop in 1933, memories and pictures of a hundred years of nursing development fill this book. It's a great resource for "County" alumni as well as anyone interested in the history of nursing and nursing schools. The book stops just at the school's reorganization from a diploma-granting institution into a 2-year college culminating in an Associate of Science degree in Nursing, and before the building of the current LAC+USC Medical Center next to "Old County" -- perhaps those developments will be included in a look back at the school's second century! This book is also available directly through the LA County College of Nursing and Allied Health Alumni Association (membership not required to order).
